

Denim Day

Wednesday, April 23, 2008

Make a powerful statement without saying a word

Why denim? Denim Day has been internationally celebrated since 1999 in protest of an Italian Supreme Court ruling that overturned a rape conviction because the victim was wearing jeans. We wear denim to dispel harmful myths about sexual violence and survivors.

Please fill out the following form to have your business or place of work participate in Denim Day, 2008. All employees will be encouraged to wear jeans on this day and will be given stickers explaining why they are wearing jeans.
